

Project Management Office (PMO) Services

Your agency seeks to achieve maximum project success rates by developing and implementing uniform and consistent management policies, processes, and methods. We can help.

Why does my organization or project need a PMO?

PMOs save money. Gartner Industry Research indicates that projects with PMOs “experience half the major project cost overruns, delays, and cancellations of those that fail to do so.”

PMOs keep the project on task. The Standish CHAOS Report (2009) indicates that 68 percent of projects do not meet the time, cost, or scope targets. A PMO can assist in delivering a project within specifications while benefiting both business and stakeholders. This is even more important when navigating the state and federal regulatory requirements of a project.

PMOs effectively manage the project. Nearly one-third of respondents in an independent study of 252 organizations cited inadequate project management implementation as the leading reason for project failure. PMOs can assist with streamlining communication, clarifying scope and complexity, and mitigating risk during project processes.

How can PCG help?

Public Consulting Group's (PCG) project management staff are certified Project Management Professionals (PMP) by the Project Management Institute (PMI). They leverage the industry's best practices as prescribed by the PMI's Project Management Body of Knowledge (PMBOK).

PCG's approach also involves the 10 key project management knowledge areas, as shown below:

By leveraging this proven framework, PCG provides each organization with a timely and pragmatic tactic to mitigate risk and enhance the likelihood of a project's success. Our PMO process will help your organization:

- Execute project-related tasks.
- Provide oversight of project activities from project initiation through completion.
- Serve as a strategic tool for senior executive management.
- Assist in tracking and reporting on project requirements, activities, and problems.
- Facilitate forward progress toward established, consistent, shared, and business-focused goals and objectives.

A customizable approach

A proven framework and repeatable process is key to the successful implementation of a PMO. PCG also recognizes that each project and organization is unique and requires its own customized solution. Our PMO services are scalable to the size and needs of your organization's efforts.
